One of the signs pictured in Julian King Colford's "The Signs of Old London" in the January St. Nicholas, has peculiar interest for all Americans. What is called "The Crown and Three Sugar Loaves" was the sign of the historic house which exported to America the celebrated chests of tea that went into Boston Harbor in December, 1773, the first overt act of rebellion in the Revolution. While the contest gave America her independence and set aside the rule of George III, it did not overthrow the business of the oldest tea house in Great Britain. The business is carried on today in the same old place as in Revolutionary times. Its sign-the sign of "The Crown and Three Sugar Loaves"-has survived the stress of age and storm and fire. The Great Fire of London swept within half a block of the shop, but the old sign itself reigns today.—St. Nicholas

"We now sell more aquariums and aquarium stock and plants than ever," said a dealer in such things. "The increase is due in large measure no doubt to the establishment in this city of the great public aquarium in Battery Park.

"People go there and study the fishes and get interested in them, and then they want an aquarium of their own. It is a fascinating pursuit, the care of an aquarium, and one in which not only children, but adults may easily become deeply interested.

"Dealers carry a far greater assortment of fishes and of aquatic plants than they formerly did, including things cheaper and costlier than ever. You can buy nowadays, for instance, goldfish for as little as five cents, or you can pay $25 for some of the very remarkable specimens that come from Japan, but you don't need to pay anything like so much as that to get specimens of very great beauty.

"Besides the many varieties of goldfish, there are now sold for aquarium stock fishes of many other species, including simple little fishes and fishes that are curious and fishes that are beautiful. Mrs. Weisslitz, president of the German Womans' Club of Buffalo, N. Y., after doctoring for two years, was finally cured of her kidney trouble by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Of all the diseases known with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless prompt and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.

Being fully aware of this, Mrs. Pinkham, early in her career, gave careful study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for woman's ills—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—made sure that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was certain to control that dreaded disease, woman's kidney troubles. The Vegetable Compound acts in harmony with the laws that govern the entire female system, and while there are many so called remedies for kidney troubles, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only one especially prepared for women.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—For two years my life was simply a burden, I suffered so with female troubles, and pains across my back and loins. The doctor told me that I had kidney troubles and prescribed for me. For three months I took his medicines, but grew steadily worse. My husband then advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and brought home a bottle. It is the greatest blessing ever brought to our home. Within three months I was a changed woman. My pain had disappeared, my complexion became clear, my eyes bright, and my entire system in good shape."—Mrs. Paula Weisslitz, 176 Seneca St., Buffalo, N. Y. Read What Mrs. Weisslitz Says.

Proof that Kidney Trouble can be Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. "Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I feel very thankful to you for the good your medicine has done me. I had doctored for years and was steadily growing worse. I had trouble with my kidneys, and two doctors told me I had Bright's disease; also had falling of the womb, and could not walk a block at a time. My back and head ached all the time, and I was so nervous I could not sleep; had hysteria and fainting spells, was tired all the time, had such a pain in my left side that I could hardly stand at times without putting my foot on something. "I doctored with several good doctors, but they did not help me any.

I took, in all, twelve bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, five boxes of Liver Pills, and used three packages of Sanative Wash, and feel like a new woman, can eat and sleep well, do all my own work, and can walk two miles without feeling over tired. The doctors tell me that my kidneys are all right now. I am so happy to be well, and I feel that I owe it all to your medicine."—Mrs. Opal Strong,

The Revival of the Garnet.

Garnets, after a long relapse, have come into fashion with a rush, and girls are ransacking their mothers' jewel boxes for ancient garnet necklaces, buckles, and brooches worn by grandmamma in the fifties, and handed down to descendants who proved rather unappreciative of the blessing.

These semi-precious stones are exquisitely becoming for evening wear, when they shine with a brilliant crimson glow most flattering to the skin of the wearer. Brunettes particularly look extremely well in these stones, and nothing can be more becoming than one of the old garnet tiaras still to be found here and there worn in a mass of waved dark locks. For day wear they are rather disappointing, being somewhat jetty in effect. Carbuncies are the uncut variety of the same stone, large specimens being ground and polished cabochon fashion. The resulting gem is handsomer than the cut garnet, and dearer. It is not, however, so fashionable as the masses of small, brilliant cut stones which one generally sees. Garnet buckles are sometimes used in black millinery with excellent effect.

A Feminine Peculiarty.

Woman's inexplicable aversion to beginning on the first page of a sheet of etter paper and following the pages in their natural order is well known, says an exchange. Men find it distracting, and even women correspondents confess that-in others-it is an eccentric practice not calculated to meditation and prayer. Beyond this no one dreamed of going until this feminine peculiarity served actually to invalidate a woman's will. The late Isabella Andrews, of Brooklyn, N. Y., it seems, was one of the women who delight to treat the third page of a sheet of writing paper as if it were the second, the fourth as if it were the third, and the second as if it were the fourth. She made her will that way, too. Starting on the first page, she jumped the provisions of the will over to the third page, which she marked two, and wound up by subscribing and attesting the document on the second page, which she marked three. She used a printed formula, which was intended to be attested on the reverse side of the first page-what in ordinary correspondence paper one would call the fourth page. The will was rejected, and the Supreme Court, to which recourse was had, upheld the rejection, on the ground that a will to be legal must be signed at the end, not in the middle, as the Andrews will was.

Qualities of an Entertainer. A flurried hostess or nervous host whose countenance but badly conceals the worry felt, can do more toward if the soup was stone cold and the salad dressing was ruined by a too bountiful quantity of vinegar.

An imperturbable calm and a ready tact are the two important factors in the making of a model hostess. Secure these and you need never fear for the success of any of your entertain-

There is no quality more to be desired to make a woman a social success than that of tact. Its possessor knows the right thing to do and the right time for doing it, and thus gains a reputation for cleverness and for virtues which a tactless woman would never win from her circle of acquaintances, no matter how excellent her qualities of both heart and head.

The tactful woman is not only a patient listener, but she is a thoroughly good one. She knows no weariness even when she has heard the same story more than once from the same person, and she smiles in the right place, and appears to enjoy hearing okes as much as her companion enwys telling them. Tact is a weapon guided with a multitude of precautions and feminine wiles by the wise woman, and it is only the wise who possess it .- Cooking Club.

Use of Miniver.

Miniver is not as pretty as ermine, consequently it does not find many wearers here, where everybody is as good as everybody else, if not better, and entitled to the best he or she can pay for. In Great Britain ermine is an emblem of royalty and miniver denotes a rank less exalted.

Some Uses of Olive Oil.

A tablespoonful of olive oil a day, taken internally, will help liver trouble and indigestion. It is also healing for throat or stomach catarrh. Serve it frequently in salad dressings, where it will be both appetizer and medicine. For severe internal disorders or emaclated and run down condition of the body, rub the patient every morning for twenty minutes with the oil, then with a bath towel; at night rub the spine for ten minutes, and in two months you will see a great improvement. Mixed with quinine, then rubbed on the chest and back, it prevents colds; mixed with camphor, then applied to the throat, it cures soreness; mixed with kerosene and turpentine, then used on the throat and chest, it relieves the most obstinate cough. Heated and applied to the bowels, it belps constitution. Try it for chapped hands and roughened or burned skin. Before putting away the stove, rub the nickel parts with the oil, also the gasolene oven or other sheet iron, and you will see no rust .- Woman's Home Companion.

About Bedrooms.

Bedrooms ought to be bedrooms and nothing else, says Caroline Hunt in The House Beautiful. She advocates sleeping in garret rooms if there is no other place in the house where one can t; c bedroom and a dressing room separately. The floor of the bedroom should be of hardwood or at least painted, so that it can be wiped up with a damp cloth and so that there need be no dust to get into the bedding when it is aired every day in the sun, it should be. Beds which are light enough to be moved easily and cleaned easily are naturally the best peds, for they may be moved from one position 1 to another and always be where they get the most sun in the daytime and the best air at night. If the headboard is no higher than the footboard, as in the iron single beds, the position of the bed in the room is very much easler to determine, since it may even be pushed against the wall sideways without appearing awkward.

Washstands and dressing tables should not be solid to within a few inches of the floor, but open so that the floor may be easily cleaned. And bedrooms should never be used for dressing rooms at an afternoon or evening gathering. To throw outside wraps upon the bed is to make a nest for the microbes of the street which are ever ready to devour.

Hints to Housekeepers.

A healing poultice for pressure in breathing or for pleurisy pains is made of onions, boiled with pork until half done, then mashed or chopped and applied hot. This was ordered for an incipient case of pneumonia in a child, and was the only remedy tried for some hours. It was made to line a jacket next to the skin, and was renewed before it got cool.
